Pirate Pete Gives Crow's Nest View

From his vantage point up in the crow's nest Pirate Pete has kept a weather eye on the Pirate clan's activities during the past years. We know that sometimes he has hidden his face under his wing in shame at what he saw, but most of the time he beamed happily at our progress, and several times he actually jigged for glee at our achievments.

The Pirate crew of the good ship LHS, from newest boots to fully-trained yeomen, have kept in mind Pete's all-seeing eye and have tried to study with industry and honor, to play with joy and enthusiasm, and to learn with concentration and creative thought.

The Pirate clan feel they have upheld the honor of their predecessors in trying to do good for others as well as in getting valuable booty—academic knowledge, athletic and musical training, communication know-how, and social enjoyment—for themselves.

We, the Pirates of 1957-58, add our loot to the treasure chest of the good ship LHS-our Pirate home-and salute Pirate Pete as the guardian angel he has turned out to be in his benevolent watchfulness over his clan.

Pirate Pete Salutes

Years of Devoted Service

Thank you, Mrs. Young!

MRS. YOUNG

MRS. GOODRICH

Pirates all, large and small, salute two grand teachers who have taught many of them at one time on their climb from beginning boots to apprentice seamen.

Mrs. Pyrl Goodrich, eighth grade teacher, has taught in the local schools for sixteen years. Holding a state general certificate, she attended NSTC both in regular and summer sessions and has taken extension classes. Besides teaching her grade, Mrs. Goodrich has directed several high school class plays.

Mrs. Phyllis Young has taught in the second and first grades for twelve years. Holding a state certificate in primary work, she attended Eastern State Normal at Madison for two years and summer sessions at NSTC. Mrs. Young has also taught the six weeks spring kindergarten classes during the last few years.

Present LHS Pirates who attended city grade schools have profited from the fine guidance and instruction of these two devoted teachers, and many LHS alumni remember them both as "My teacher."

"Well done, ye good and faithful servants," expresses Leola's gratitude to Mrs. Goodrich and Mrs. Young.

MRS. LILLIAN KINDELSPIRE B.S.,USD;M.S.in Education, NSTC.Junior class adviser, English I and III, typing, librarian.

Though we wouldn't want Pirate Pete to feel put out about it,we must admit that his watchful eye wasn't the only good influence that kept us on our toes and in our best behavior this past year. We hope Pete understands that we are not belittling him when we pay tribute to our able Captain Hilsendeger, his navigator, and his mates for the fine leadership they have given us in all our endeavors and for the knowledge they have imparted to us, both in teaching us facts and in creating in us a desire to learn more.

MRS. GERTRUD BECKER — B.S.,English, Jamestown College. English II and IV; journalism; Pirate Chatter and Buccaneer adviser; junior and senior play director; Pep Club adviser.

MARVIN MAULE-B.A., Music & German, Jamestown College. World history; economics, first semester; world geography, second semester; instrumental & vocal music; grade band; sophomore class adviser.

As LHS crew members advance from one seaman's grade to another, though their reactions may at times seem to prove otherwise, they find their officers' directions and guidance essential to their progress.

Pirates Share Courses, Fun

Boy, you're thirsty!

The slide rule is no slide to physics students.

Seeking always for approval from Pirate Pete's watchful eye, students in classes and assembly stored up new facts and warm memories to reminisce upon when their turn comes to stand watch in the crow's nest. Participating in school and community events - ball games-polio drive- parties-projects-they learned and laughed together.

Yeomen,

We've Sailed the Seas of Knowledge

And Now Set Sail for Work or College

Though it may have seemed like four score years to Pirate Pete, he's actually watched most of us through only four years of high school. As Yeomen, the highest non-commissioned officers on our ship, we have had the pleasure of occasionally sharing the crow's nest with Pirate Pete as supervisors of various student activities.

Both in scholastic accomplishment and in musical and athletic triumphs we've joined with the rest of the clan in bringing honor to LHS. In community drives and statewide journalistic activities, as groups and as individuals, we have carried the Jolly Roger proudly and have brought honor and glory to our clan.

As the gangplank is lowered for our departure to wider seas and larger craft, we wave goodbye to Pirate Pete and leave to our fellow crewmen a heritage of ever increasing accomplishment and honor which we know they will cherish always and add to in their turn.

Congratulations !
We made it!

Pirates on parade.

Elected by the student body, Marion Becker and Craig Knudson ruled as Homecoming royalty.

Joining Queen Marion and King Craig in the Homecoming royalty parade were best-dressed Pirates pictured at the right. Reading from the ends, Patty Holmes and Terry Durnil represent the first four grades; Carol Hilgemann and Harry Adam, upper grades; and Marcella Breitag and Billy Breitag, high school.

Pictured above, a freshman year highlight was initiation, planned and supervised by the sophomores. Boot Pirates on parade pass watching upper classmen.

Following initiation and the judging of best-dressed Pirates, a parade led by the band through downtown Leola and a football game with Ashley entertained visiting ex-Pirates. Homecoming day festivities closed with an evening dance.

EIGHTH GRADE

Applying spit and polish in an effort to prepare for tests facing those who want to become ex-boots and freshman seamen, the eighth graders got a taste of high school life at several parties,initiated the ant palace on its rounds through the grades, were fascinated by new microscopes, played in the band, took part in athletics, and made up for lost recess time in spirited soft ball games.

Seventh graders smile pretty for the photographer.

SEVENTH GRADE

Learning good citizenship as YCL members, the seventh graders also attended several high school parties and had members practicing for the day they could join band. Boys and girls alike made active use of the outdoor basketball court.

SIXTH GRADE

Putting their advertising knowledge to practical use in their skit for the carnival program,sixth graders read books,were band beginners, took part in grade basketball, and worked industriously on their spring exhibits for parents.

Fifth graders eagerly anticipate their teacher's choice of a story to read

FIFTH GRADE

Having their candidates crowned as carnival prince and princess was a highlight of the fifth grade year.Two firsts were YCL meetings and use of simplified microscopes in science. Grade basketball and instrument lessons kept fifth graders busy even when lessons were done.

FOURTH GRADE

Listening to tales of long ago, fourth graders also enjoy the Christmas mobile in the background.

Third graders study industriously as their teacher helps a fellow-pupil.

Fourth graders were especially proud of the mobiles and motors they constructed. Together with the third grade they formed a tonette band this year under the direction of Mr. Maule.Cub Scouts for boys and 4-H for girls opened new fields of interest for these boots.

THIRD GRADE

The oldest group on their floor, the third graders look forward to going "upstairs"next year. The new lunch room has proved a wonderful boon to those who eat lunch at school.Together with other lower graders the third graders have enjoyed a weekly gym class where they've marched , played games, and square-danced.

SECOND GRADE

Reading has become a source of delight to most second graders, many of whom won their life memberships in the Library Club of America by reading 18 books. New words have been added to their vocabularies, and writing has proved a useful tool in employing them.

FIRST GRADE

First graders listen with rapt attention to their teacher's words.

The youngest of the clan have received special attention from Pirate Pete in his crow's nest. He's enjoyed watching them take part in the Homecoming parade and the carnival program and chuckled at their delight in some of their firsts---first sand box,first story books, first playlets,first Valentine box. Pete's babies are eagerly looking forward to another first---the school picnic.

Pirate Passes Pile Up Pigskin Points

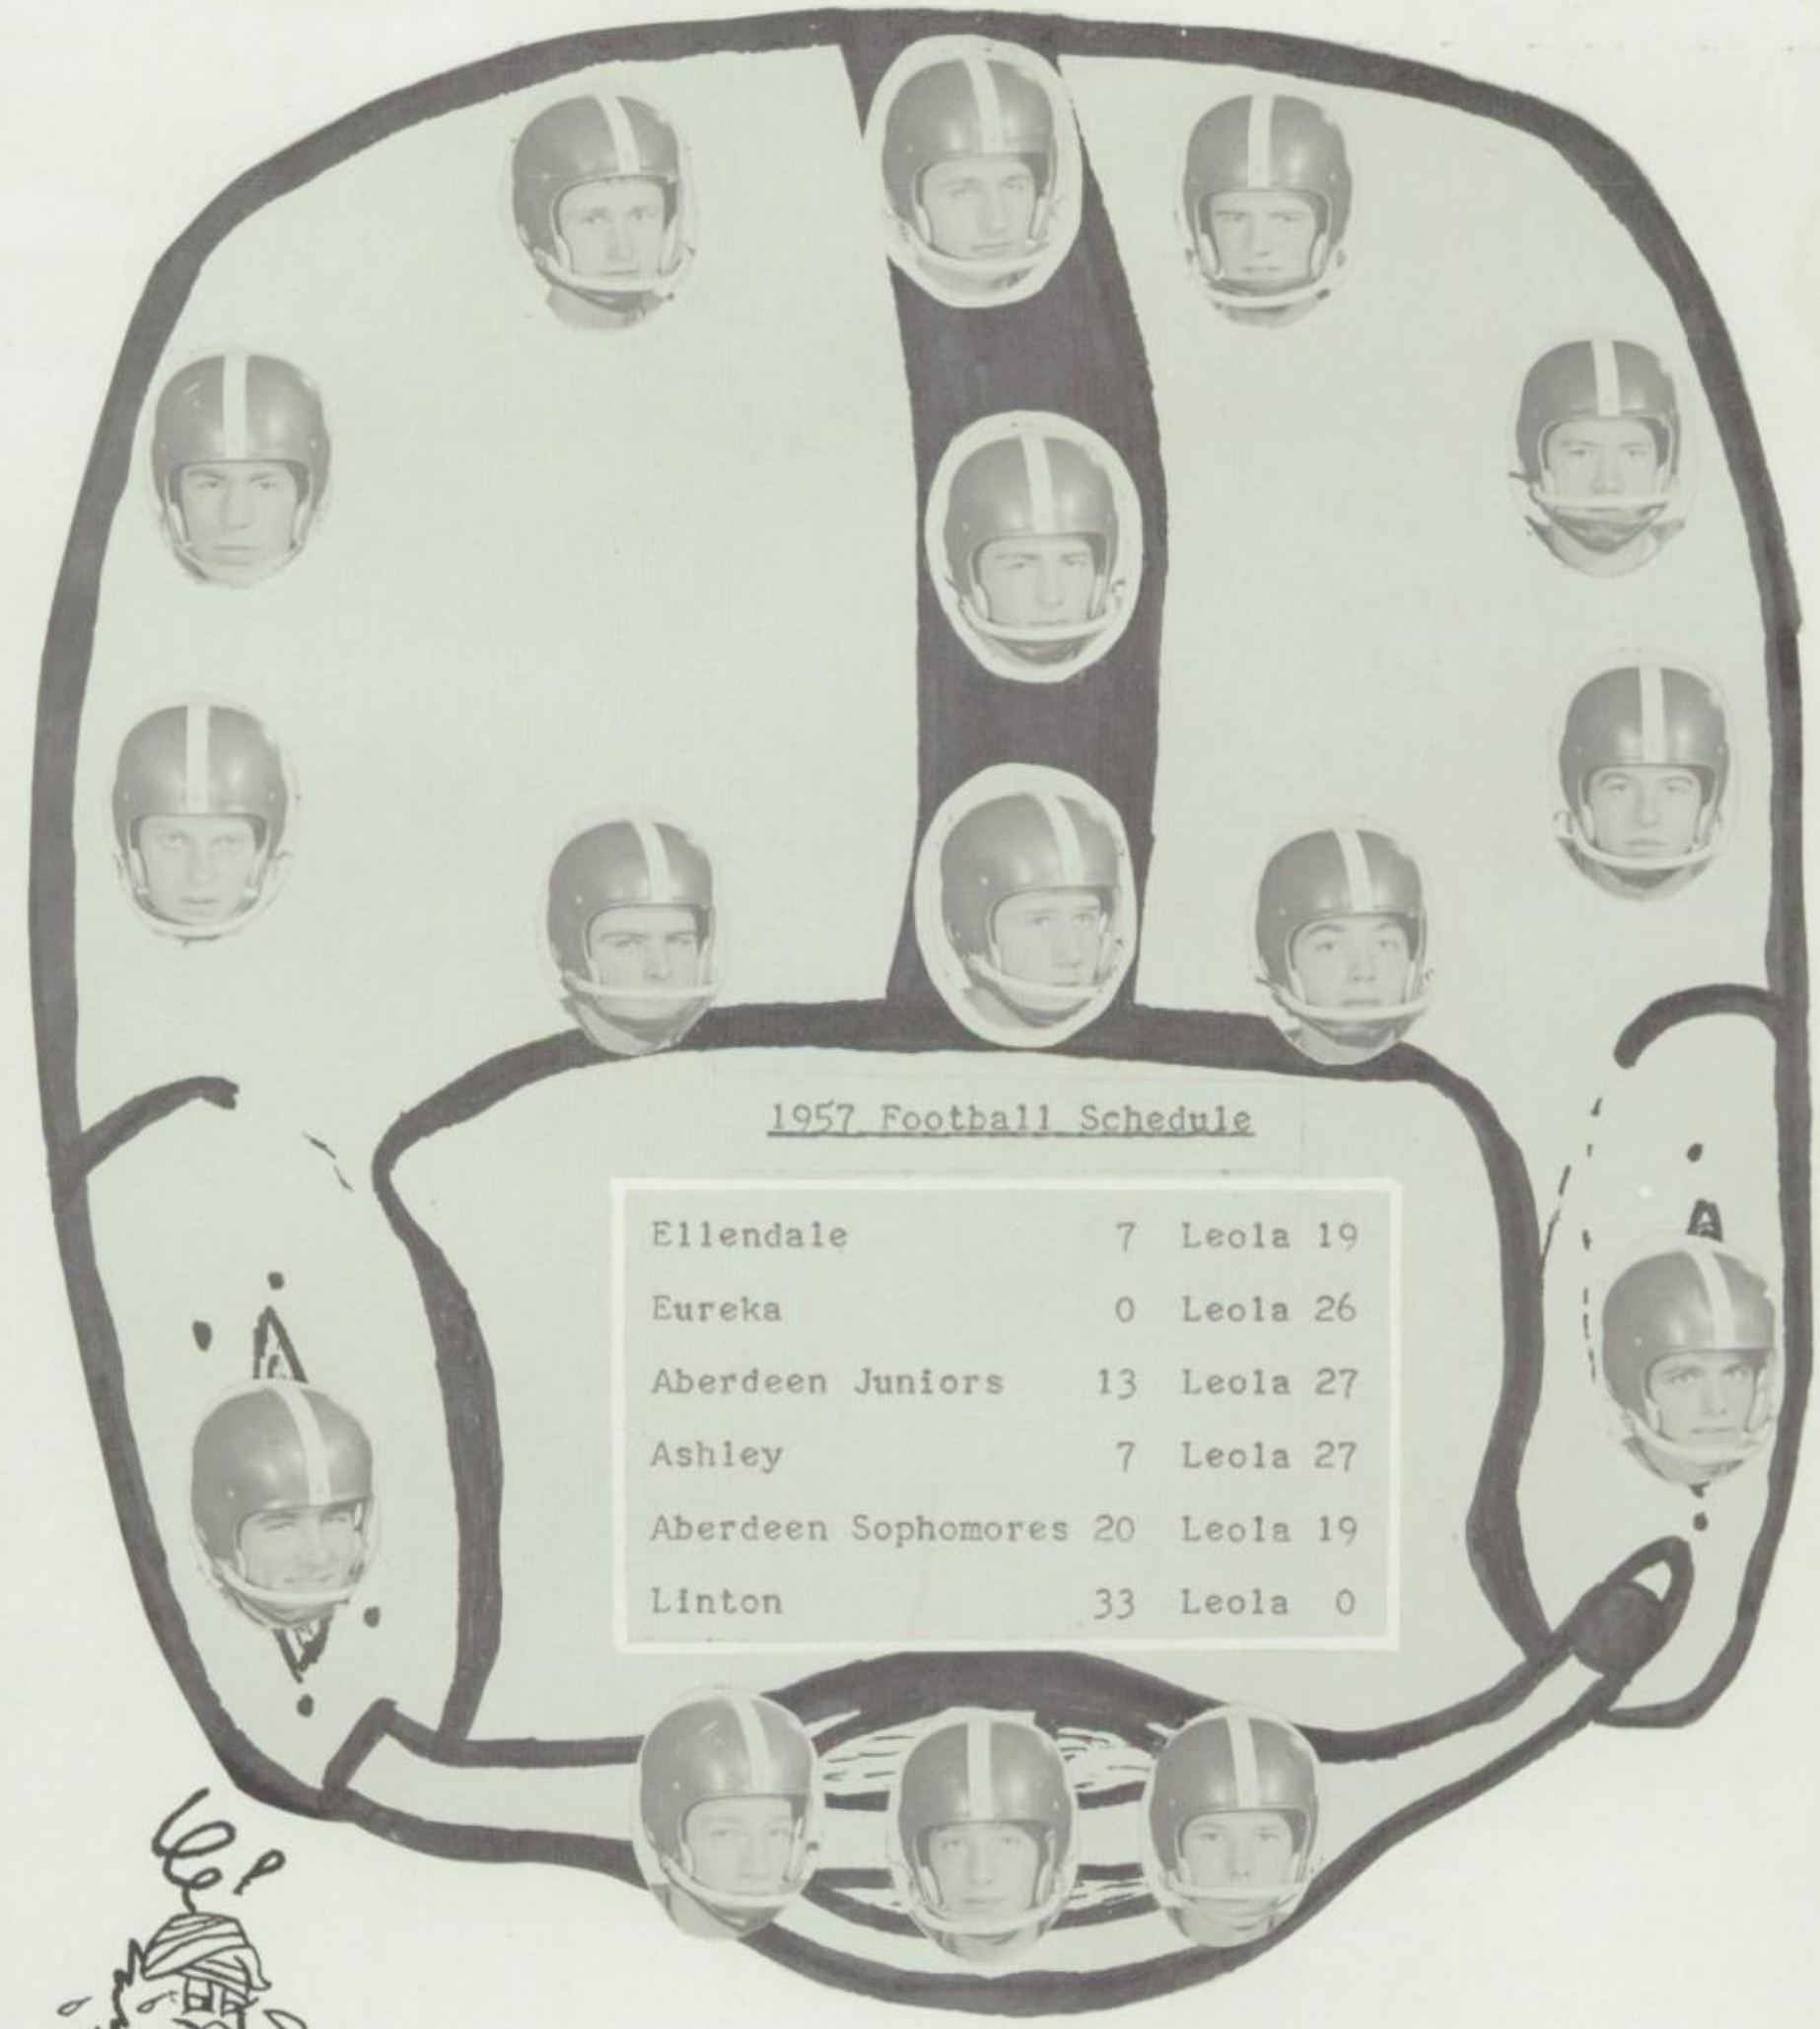
On one-on two-snap!

The Pirates experienced their best football season in many years as they compiled a 4-2 record. With Gary Breitag at the helm and Elmer Ketterling, Melvin Breitag, and Gary Guthmiller across the T behind him, the Pirates manhandled Ellendale, Eureka, Aberdeen Juniors, and Ashley in winning their first four games of the season. However, erratic trade winds blew the Pirates off course at the two-thirds mark, and they lost their last two games to the Aberdeen Sophomores and Linton.

Here we come!

Step lightly!They're our toes!

Helmets at the Helm



1957 Football Schedule

Ellendale	7	Leola	19
Eureka	0	Leola	26
Aberdeen Juniors	13	Leola	27
Ashley	7	Leola	27
Aberdeen Sophomores	20	Leola	19
Linton	33	Leola	0

Pictured in the helmet proper are the eleven Pirates who carried the brunt of the battle and sparked the victory drives. In the chin strap and ear guards are five of their mates who also saw plenty of action. Like Pirate Pete, some of them limped off the field, but they always came back for more.

Exercising their vocal chords and almost blasting Pirate Pete from his crow's nest, the pep club, led by the cheerleaders, sparked their team on to victory and proudly wore their new beanies.

Lettermen, decked out in their new royal blue and white jackets, not only displayed the school colors but also upheld LHS honor in setting an example of good sportsmanship.

Following the various skits, plays, and musical numbers presented by grade and high school students in the carnival program on November 4, the carnival proper got underway the next night with entertainment, games,and booths for all comers. Pirate Pete turned his head the other way as guests were fleeced, but beamed happily at the record loot left for activities, grades, and student council projects.

But you should see the one you didn't get!

All set for the Easter Parade.

Brother blows horn as sister blows top.

Juniors Frank Bain and Marless Krein reigned as carnival king and queen,while Imogene Smolnisky and Lee Bain,Frank's brother, represented the fifth grade as princess and prince.

Smeckt gut! Kauf dir ah!

William Breitag, James Breitag, Frank Bain, Arnold Lechner, James Meidinger, Robert Hoeft, Arlin Grabowska, Gary Breitag, Melvin Breitag, Ronald Schaffer, Elmer Ketterling, and Marvin Ketterling are "A" squad members.

The Pirate basketball team compiled a 20-win, 4-loss record in the 1957-58 season to make Marvin McPhee's first year as head basketball coach an enjoyable one. The crew were struck down with influenza at the onset of the voyage as they lost their first game, but after a few weeks the Pirates headed for the open seas under full sail through their next fourteen games, losing only one.

Smooth sailing was interrupted by a loss to Columbia in the finals of the North Central Conference tournament, but the Pirates got revenge a few days later. They went on to win the last six regular season games, the last one an important triumph over the Aberdeen Juniors to clinch the NCC championship.

Leola lost the opener of District V play to Ipswich to end the season. Gary Breitag and Captain Arlin Grabowska, seniors, bowed out of high school basketball in grand fashion with their great performances in that game.

Up she goes!

The Pirate"B"squad compiled a season's record of 11-5 in playing preliminary games with the "B"teams of the varsity's opponents. Finishing with a 5-2 mark in the North Central Conference which includes the"B" teams of the regular 8 members, they showed real poise and ability and gave indication that the Pirate varsity would have abundant talent for years to come.

Flying high!

Let go! It's mine!

Here you are, sir.

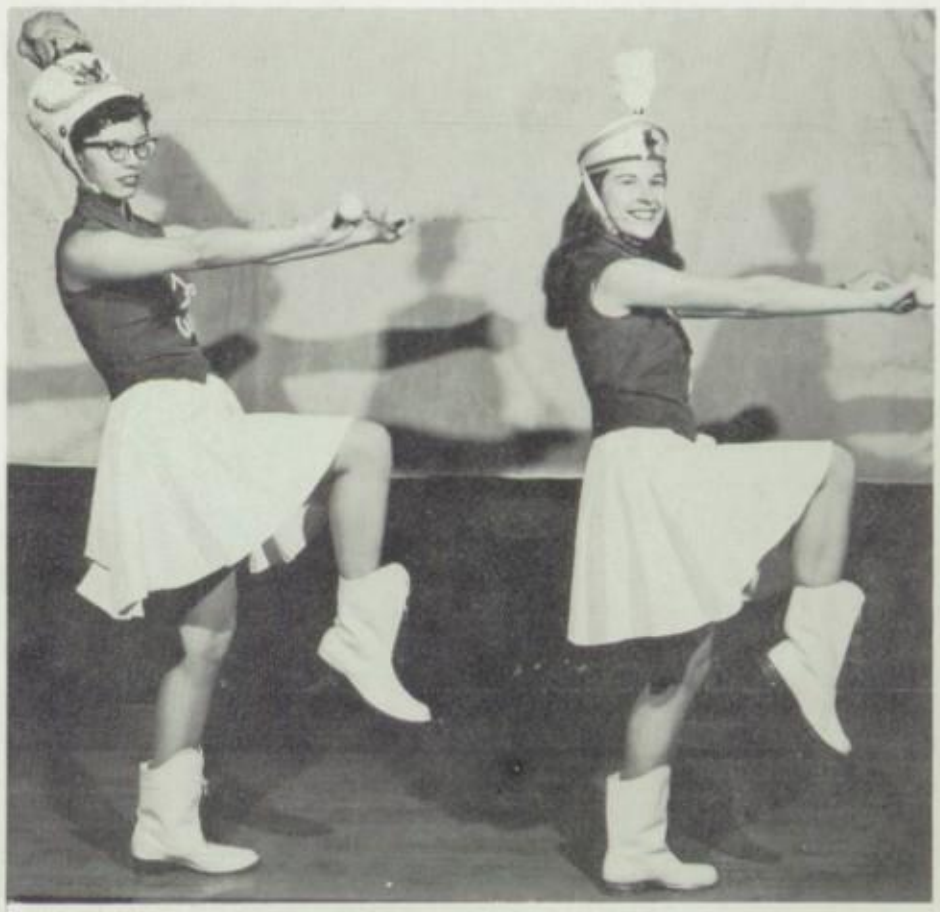
Yippee!

We're baashful!

Spurring on the Pep Club and other loyal Pirate fans, cheerleaders went all out to give their athletes vocal support and even got Pirate Pete to flap his wings enthusiastically on occasion.

Entertaining fans between halves of games and stepping out to lead the band, the twirlers also aided the polio drive as shy little girls.

Heh! Heh! And then what happened?



Jean Heibel and Marion Becker.

Guess who's winning.

Machinists Portray "High School Hero"

From unintentionally calling the principal an old battle-ax and a sour puss to declaring "There ain't nothin' wrong with my grammar nohow!"characters in the junior play, "High School Hero" enacted for its enthusiastic audience a typical chapter of high school life. Football games, thefts,car accidents,tests,and "steadies" all figured in the fun and excitement. Mrs.Becker put the machinists through their paces and helped them tighten the bolts and nuts for a polished performance.

Ain't nothin'wrong with my grammar!

You'd have fun too!

Tell them,Johnny!Tell them!

She stole'em!

BOYS' QUARTET

Clifford Weisz, Leon Lapka, Darrel Schaible, Craig Knudson.

Participating in the spring concert and contest, both quartets strove to better previous records. The girls' quartet also sang at the Snow Queen contest.

Christmas concert saw the first appearance of the sextet and the small chorus.The latter entertained at the Better Leola Club Ladies' Night, and both took part in spring activities.

GIRLS' QUARTET

Joanne Heagley, Esther Kaul, Shirlene Hoffman, Sylvia Rott.

GIRLS' SEXTET

Audrey Vilhauer, Karen Muhlbeier, Julienne Rath, Rose Kaul, Joanne Heagley, Barbara Kulm.

From his perch in the crow's nest, Pirate Pete enjoyed listening to the large singing groups as well as to those pictured here. Humming snatches of chorus melodies like "They Call It America" has kept him happy during lonesome night watches. Mixed chorus and girls' glee club sang for the carnival program and Christmas concert. The three large groups took part in the spring concert and contest.

Pete Surveys Growing Band

Having won an excellent rating as "South Dakota's smallest band", this year's larger group practiced diligently in an effort to better their record. Doing Pete proud in their royal blue uniforms, the horn-blowers and drum-pounders led the Homecoming parade, accompanied community singing at the Christmas program, and serenaded the home team on to victory at athletic events before appearing in the spring contest and concert.

BEGINNERS' BAND

Back row:Gladys Wagenmann, Carol Dockter, Peter Holmes, Charlotte Schaible,Sandra Doerr. Front row:Stephen Becker,Dorothy Neuharth,Paul Holmes,Lester Weishaar,Thomas Heintzman,Louis Cowherd.

Music Club officers Craig Knudson, president; Esther Kaul, secretary-treasurer; Marcella Hoffman, vice president; inspect contest selection.

Jean and Marion lead the band in Homecoming parade

Julienne Rath, Carol Walth, Craig Knudson, Darrel Schaible, and Mr. Maule form the little German Band.

TONETTE

Third and fourth grade students unite to form the tonette band.

A music booster's club to encourage interest in music was organized in Leola this year.

What's the matter, boys?

Sing it sweet for Pirate Pete!

Seniors Publish Pete's Log Book

The staff members pictured above were elected by the senior class to head up annual production. Others pictured here and Pauline Fuehrer,Caroline Geffre, Roger Opp, Gary Breitag, and Billy Breitag helped with the cutting up, writing down,typing over,cropping,scaling,and sometimes-going-for-a-walk-to-cool-way-off when things didn't want to work out.Putting Pete's crow's eye view of the school year in black and white was both educational and enjoyable.
